THE AUTHOR OF "MARY POWELL"

THE YEAR NINE: A Tale of the Tyrol.

In post 8vo., price 7s. 6d., cloth gilt, with Frontispiece.

"Sweet 'Mary Powell' exchanges her lute for a cymbal, clanging with her white fingers upon the sounding brass. The subject is well chosen, and the theme inspiriting. 'Hofer' is the hero of her lute."—Art-Journal.

"A highly interesting volume, in which the noble stand made by an army of peasants for independence is told with great power and pathos."—Morning Herald.
"It is full of talent and historical knowledge, and has the peculiar grace of 'Mary Powell's' style. A better book for a young lady is not to be found among the new Christmas books."—Globe.

"We give the warmest praise to this noble book; it is of thrilling interest, and one of the very best of its popular author's productions."—Nonconformist.

"A series of finished sketches of life, character, and manners among the mountains."-Leader.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES: A Tale of Auvergne.

Second Edition, price 7s. 6d., post 8vo. cloth, with Frontispiece.

"It is written in a clear, pointed style, embellished with original fancies, and cloquent with an earnest meaning. The various scenes and characters are obviously studies from life—the lite of restlessness, of fear, of devotion, among the triends of martyrs, described by the chroniclers of that epoch, stained with the blood of fanatical wars and persecutions. Colette, as delicately and distinctly limited in the successive chapters, might have formed a figure in the fifteenth-century group, drawn by a home-inspired artist. Then, the struggle round the walls of Le Puy is a picture of olden warfare of arquebuss and halberd battles, of priestly soldiers, sworn to shed no blood, but casuistically, with a ponderous club, immortalizing the miserable routiers. Again, the crétin is a portrait paintuity accurate. Indeed, the entire story is vivified by its evident reality."—Athencum.

THE PROVOCATIONS OF MADAME PALISSY.

With Coloured Frontispiece by Warren. Third Edition, price 7s. 6d., post 8vo. cloth.

"One of the most graceful of stories gracefully told; something to touch the heart, to call up a smile, and to summon a tear even into manly eyes. We do not remember ever having met with a book at once so natural, so clever, and so emphatically 'delicious."—Church and State Gazette.

"It is a long time since we have met with a book of such truly excellent characteristics as are apparent in every page of this volume."—Bell's Messenger.

"On the basis of the true history of Talissy, the writer has formed the present work; has given a very spirited sketch of his labours; has exhibited the extravagances, amounting to crime, of a man of genius driving on in the pursuit of his darling object; and has depicted, as the title promises, with a good deal of power, the plagues of a wife who has such a husband. "Christian Observer."

CLAUDE THE COLPORTEUR.

With Coloured Frontispiece after Warren. New Edition, price 7s. 6d., cloth gilt.

"The hero of the narrative is, in plain English, a Bible hawker among Roman Catholics chiefly; and his difficulties, ill-treatment, conversations, and beneficial influence, form the staple of the book—his character is well drawn."—English

Churchman.

"The volume is one of no ordinary merit; for it throws intense interest around common occurrences and common characters, and presents not only a vivid series of pictures, but a well-sustained tale,"—Church and State Gazette.

SOME ACCOUNT OF MRS. CLARINDA SINGLEHART.

With Frontispiece. Post 8vo. cloth, price 7s. 6d.

"It may be said of all her works, that of their kind they are very good; and this cannot fail to give pleasure to every reader capable of appreciating literary merit, and it will commend itself for family reading, on account of the genial tone of the morality which runs throughout."—Allas.

"The gentle, affectionate, and cheerful temper of the heroine, and the whole tone of the book, must have an influence for good upon any reader who is at all open to such influence, and is willing to allow books of this kind a higher office than that of merely amusing them for a few hours."—English Churchman.

"Above all, we notice a deep and pervaling carnestness of religious feeling which tends to elevate the story above the range of mere fiction; and this is a feature more especially which enables us to commend the book to the favourable consideration of our readers."—Church and State Gazette.

THE CHRONICLES OF MERRY ENGLAND.

In fcap, cloth, price 3s. 6d.

"We have here the records of old, from which the aged reader may learn as much, and with which he may be as much amused, as the young students, who will welcome the story-teller, and be grateful for the tale."—Church and State Gazette

"The work bids fair to become a great favourite with the young in schools and families."-British Quarterly.

"The method here adopted of teaching the facts of bygone times is one which will most assuredly have a considerable influence in fixing such facts upon the memory, and rendering them ineffaceable."—Belt's Messenger.

A SABBATH AT HOME.

A Short Manual for those who are occasionally hindered from attending the House of God. Price 3s. 6d., neatly bound.

YE MAIDEN AND MARRIED LIFE OF MARY POWELL, AFTERWARDS MISTRESS MILTON. Third Edition, in post 8vo., price

7s. 6d., antique.

"This is a charming little book; and whether we regard its subject, cleverness, or delicacy of sentiment and expression,—to say nothing of its type and orthography,—it is likely to be a most acceptable present to young or old, be their peculiar taste for religion, morals, poetry, history, or romance."—Christian Observer.

"Unquestionably the production of an able hand and a refined mind. We recommend it to all who love pure, healthy literary fare."—Church and State Gazette.

"This quaint narrative, presented in ancient binding, and in the type of bygone days, is a most acceptable addition to the literature of the times."—
"Is Messenser."

YE HOUSEHOLD OF SIR THOMAS MORE, LIBRALUS A

MARGARETA MORE, QUINDECIM ANNOS NATA, CHELSELE INCEPTVS. Third Edition, with Portrait, &c., price 7s. 6d., cloth antique.

"It ends with musical melancholy, a strain of exquisitely simple beauty, referring to the judicial slaying of one of England's worthlest sons. There are some fine portraits ably limned herein. There are family pictures so graphically described, that they possess the mind for ever."—Church and State Gazette.

"Clever and agreeable reading.... We can give the book unqualified praise for the plea ant and tolerably accurate pletures which it affords of the domestic manners of the period; and the characters of some of the personages represented are drawn with distinctness, and with the features of nature."—Athenæum.

THE COLLOQUIES OF EDWARD OSBORNE, Citizen and Clothworker of London. Second Edition, with Frontispiece, &c., price 7s. 6d., cloth antique.

"This is a pleasant little volume, relating the fortunes of a London apprentice in the sixteenth century."—Athenœum.

"Of the many attempts at delineating the manners and opinions of the Stuart and Elizabethan times, as if from the pen of a contemporary writer, 'Edward Osborne' is the best. It has what the others have wanted—an actual story; it plunges its hero more completely into the business and life of the period, and not unskilfully mingles public events with private affairs. . . . The secret of the author's success is that the scenes and manners of the Tudor age are interwoven with the narrative, or where they are merely introduced they are not overdone."—Spectator.

CHERRY AND VIOLET: A Tale of the Great Plague.

Second Edition, price 7s. 6d., cloth antique.

"Without wishing to detract from the merit of Defoe, we are bound to say, that this is one of the best written descriptions of London during the time of that awful visitation that we ever came across."—John Bull.

"This, like all her stories, is sweet and graceful: a young girl innocently telling all her youthful feelings and adventures, and bringing into play the interest to be derived from a picture of London life in the times of the Protector and Charles II."—Guardian.

"A most agreeable story is presented, and the manner of telling it is as quaint and agreeable as the style of the type and binding."—Bell's Messenger.

"Ever welcome are the works of this authoress to the hearths and hearts of English readers and listeners. And very simply, and sweetly, and winningly, does Cherry tell her story; and a right admirable story it is, with just such a conclusion to it as we would have wished."—Church and State Gazette.

THE OLD CHELSEA BUNHOUSE: A Tale of the Last Century. Post Svo., 7s. 6d., antique.

"This is out and out the most successful of those diarles of the olden time, in the composition of which the author of 'Mary Powell' excels. Nothing could be more graphic than the picture of life and manners in the different classes of society."—John Bull.

"The author has succeeded in giving as fair a picture of the period as any of the authors of the five volume novels of the time, with this additional merit, that the picture is evolved by means of a pretty story of domestic life."—The Press.

HELEN AND OLGA: A Russian Tale.

In post 8vo. cloth, with Vignette, price 3s. 6d.

"Told in a very simple, and, at the same time, very impressive manner. The story is an illustration of the miseries of serfdom. As a narrative, this 'Russian Tale' has much merit, while, as a picture of a phase of Russian life, its 'local colour' gives it a character of probability which is not often found in fiction. It will therefore be perused with pleasure by many readers; and it can, on the score of instruction as well as of entertainment, be cordially recommended to the favour of the general public."—Observer.

"A certain amount of ability and tact appears in all this author's works, the subject and style of which will generally secure many readers."—Literary Gazette.

"We must pronounce 'Helen and Olga' to be one of her most readable works. There is no particular concentration of interest, either in the events or the character, but most readers will find it such an attractive and lively novelette that they will have their attention and their interest sustained throughout."— Enclush Churchman.

TASSO AND LEONORA.

With Frontispiece. Post Svo. cloth, price 3s. 6d.

"Another agreeable addition to the new numerous productions of a writer whose simple but graphic style is embellished with a vivid truth in manners and costume." "Gentleman's Magazine.

"The author is famous for constructing pretty historical actions, and this is one of the best of them. The love story of the unfortunate Tasso is brought before the reader with much dramatic effect and archaic propriety."—Press.

"The subject is one of much interest, the chief incidents of the life of Tasso being ingeniously interwoven with notices of Italian history and the customs of that age."—Laterary Gazette.

THE HILL-SIDE.

Illustrations of some of the Simplest Terms used in Logic. Fcap. cloth, 1s. 6d.

THE ADVENTURES OF THE CALIPH HAROUN AL-

RASCHID. Post 8vo. antique, 2s. 6d., or gilt, 5s.

QUEENE PHILIPPA'S GOLDEN BOOKE.

With Illuminations. Price 2s. 6d.; handsomely bound and gilt, 5s.

JACK AND THE TANNER: A Tale of the Time of

EDWARD THE SIXTH. Post 8vo. cloth, 9d., with Frontispiece.

"The story is never made to stand still. It is a drama of sparkling activity, wherein the scenery, dresses, appointments, and language are all appropriate and good."—Church and State Gazette.

* * * * Something geniall and foothing beyond ordinarie in the Warmth and fitfulle Lighte of the Fire, made us delaye, I know not how long, to trim the Evening Lamp, and fitt muzing in Idlenesse about the Hearth; Mary revolving her Thumbs and staring at the Embers; Anne quite in the Shadowe, with her Arms behind her Head agaynst the Wall; Father in his tall Arm-chair, quite uprighte, as his Fashion is when very thoughtfulle; I on the Cushion at his Feet, with mine Head on's Knee and mine Eyes on his Shadowe on the Wall, which, as it happened, shewed in colossal Proportions, while ours were like Pigmies. Alle at once he exclaims, "We all feem very "comfortable—I think we shoulde "reward ourselves with some Egg-"flip!"

And then offered us Pence for our Thoughts. Anne would not tell hers; Mary owned she had beene trying to account for the Deficiencie of a Groat in her house-keeping Purse; and I confest to such a Medley, that Father sayd I deserved Anne's Penny in addition to mine own, for my Strength of Mind in submitting such a Farrago of Nonsense to the Ridicule of my Friends.

Soe then I bade for his Thoughts, and he fayd he had beene questioning the Cricket on the Hearth, upon the Extinction of the Fairies; and I aikt, Did anie believe in 'em now? and he made Answer, Oh, yes, he had known a Serving-Wench in Oxon

After this, he woulde tell us of this this and that worn-out Superstition, as o' the Friar's Lantern, and of Lob-lie-by-the-Fire, until Mary, who affects not the Unreall, went off to make the Flip. Anne presentlie exclaimed, "Father! when "you sayd—

Father still hammering on old Times, and his owne young Days, I beganne to frame unto myself an Image of what he might then have beene; piecing it out by Help of his Picture on the Wall; but coulde get no cleare Apprehension of my Mother, she dying soe untimelie. Askt him, Was she beautifulle? He fayth, Oh yes, and clouded over o' the fuddain; then went over her Height, Size, and Colour, etc.; dwelt on the Generalls of personal Beauty, how it shadowed forthe the Mind, was defirable or dangerous, etc.

On dispersing for the Night, he noted, somewhat hurt, Anne's abrupt Departure without kissing his Hand, and sayd, "Is she sulky or unwell?"

In our Chamber, found her alreadie half undrest, a reading of her Bible; sayd, "Father tooke your "briefe Good-nighte amisse." She made Answer shortlie, "Well, what "neede to marvell; he cannot put "his Arm about me without being "reminded how mis-shapen I am."

Poor Nan! we had been speaking of faire Proportions, and had thought-lessly cut her to the Quick; yet

Father knoweth, though he cannot fee, that her Face is that of an Angel.

1665.

About One o' the Clock, was rouzed (though Anne continued fleeping foundly) by hearing Father give his three Signal-taps agaynst the Wall. Half drest, and with bare Feet thrust into Slippers, I hastily ran in to him; he cried, "Deb, for the Love "of Heaven get Pen and Paper to "fett Something down." I replied, "Sure, Father, you gave me quite a "Turn; I thought you were ill," and fett to my Task, marvellous illconditioned, expecting some Crotchet had had taken him concerning his Will.

'Stead of which, out comes a Volley of Poetry he had lain a brewing till his Brain was like to burst; and soe I, in my thin Night Cotes, must needs jot it all down, for Feare it should ooze away before Morning. Sure, I thought he never would get to the End, and really feared at firste he was crazing a little, but indeede all Poets doe when the Vein is on 'em. "I am quite concerned I knew it agaynst one that is resolved to cheat. 'Tis noe Goode complayning to a Man; he will not see, even though unafflicted like Father, who cannot. Men's Minds run on greater Things, and foe they are fretted at domestic Appeals, and generallie give Judgment the wrong Way. Thus we founde it before, poor motherlesse Girls, to our Cost; and I reallie believe it was more in Kindnesse for us than himself, that Father listened to the Doctor's Overtures in behalfe of Miss Minshull; for what Companion can foe illiterate a Woman be to him? But he believed her gentle, hearde that she was a good Housewife.

Housewife, and apprehended she would be kind to us * * * * Alas the Daye! What Tears we three shed in our Chamber that Night! and wished, too late, we had ne'er referred to him a Grievance, nor let him know we had a Burthen. Soone we founde King Log had been fucceeded by King Stork; foone made common Cause, tryed our Strength and found it wanting, and foone fubmitted to our new Yoke, and tried to make the best of it.

Yes, that is the onlie Course; we alle feele it; onlie, as Ill-luck will have it, we do not always feel it simultaneouslie.

fimultaneouslie. Anne, mayhap, has one of her dogged humours; Mary and I see how much better 'twould be, did she overcome it, or shut herself up till in better Temper. Mary is crabbed and exacting; Anne and I cannot put her straight. Well for us when we succeed just soe far as to keep it from the Notice of Father. Thus we rub on; I wonder if we ever shall pull all together?

Like unto a wife Master-builder, who ordereth the Disposition of eache Stone till the whole Building is fitly compacted together, so doth Father build up his noble Poem, April 22.

which groweth under our Hands. Three Nights have I, without Complaynt, lost my Rest while writing at his Bedfide; this hath made me yawnish in the Day-time, or, as Mother will have it, lazy. However, I bethink me of Damo, Daughter of Pythagoras.

Mother came Home yesterday, and Betty, the Picture of Neatnesse, tooke goode Heede to be the first to welcome her, with officious Smiles, and Prayses of her Looks. For my Part, I thoughte it fullfome, but knew her Motives better than Mother, who took it alle in goode Part. Indeede, noe one would give

give this Girl credit for soe false a Heart; she is pretty, modest looking, and for a while before my Father's Marriage was as great a Favourite with Mary as now with my Mother; slattered her the same, and tempted her to idle gossipping Considences. She was slow to believe herself cheated; and when 'twas as cleare as Day, could not convince Father of it.

On Mary's mentioning this Morning (unadvisedlie, I think,) the Kitchen Visitor, Mother made short Answer—

Mary was out of Patience with Father yesterday, who, after keeping her a full Hour at Thucydides, fayd,

"Well, now we will refresh our-"selves with a Canto of Ariosto," which was as much a sealed Book to her as t'other. Howbeit, this Morning he sayd,

Nevertheless, that I "be not further wearisome unto thee, "I have engaged a young Quaker, "named Ellwood, to relieve thee of "this Portion of thy Task, soe that "thou mayst have the more Leisure "to enjoy the glad Sunshine and fair "Sights I never more shall see."

Mary turned red, and dropt a quiet Tear; but alas, he knew it not.

"I can't fancy Tanfy-pudding," fays Uncle, shuddering; "I cannot "abide Tansies, even in Lent. Be-"fides, I'm expecting a Reference."

"Oh! very well; then drop in

"again in the Evening, if you will; "and very likely you will meet

"Well,

"Well, that founds good. I don't mind if I do," fays Uncle; "but "don't expect me after nine."

"I'm in Bed by nine," fays Father.

Oh, oh!" fays Uncle; and with a comical Look at us, he went off.

Uncle Kit did not come last Night;
I did not much expect he woulde;
nor Mr. Skinner. Insteade, we had Dr. Paget, and one or two others, who talked dolefully alle the Evening of Signs of the Times, till they gave me the Horrors. One had seen a Ghost, or at least, seen a Crowd
E looking

Instruments of God's Wrath, to execute Judgments upon ungodly Men, and convince them of the ill Deeds which they have ungodly committed; as during the Pestilence in David's Time, when the King faw the Destroying Angel standing between Heaven and Earth, having a drawn Sword in his Hand, stretched over Jerusalem. Such Delegates we might, without Fanaticism, suppose to be the generall, though unfeen, Instruments of public Chastisements; and, for our particular Comfort, we had equall Reason to repose on the Affurance, that even amid the Pestilence that walked in Darkness, and

the Destruction that wasted by Noonday, the Angels had charge over each particular Believer, to keep them in all their Ways. Adding, that, though he forbore, with Calvin, to pronounce that each Man had his own Guardian Spiritt,—a Subject whereon Scripture was filent,—we had the Lord's own Word for it, that little Children were the particular Care of holy Angels.

And this, and othermuch to fame Purport, had foe foothing and fedative an Effect, that we might have gone to Bed in peacefull Trust, onlie that Dr. Paget must needs bring up, after Supper, the correlative Plague, and the poisoned Wells, which sett Father off upon the Acts of Mercy of Cardinal Borromeo,—not him called St. Charles, but the Cardinal-Archbishop,—and soe, to the Pestilence at Geneva, when even the Bars and Locks of Doors were poisoned by a Gang of Wretches, who thought to pillage the Dwellings of the Dead; till we all went to Bed, moped to Death.

Howbeit, I had been warmly asleep some Hours, (more by Token I had read the ninety-first Psalm before getting into Bed), when Anne, clinging to me, woke me up with a shrill

1665.	fhrill Cry. I whispered fearfullie,
	"What is't?—a Thief under the " Bed ?"
	"No, no," she replies. "Listen!"
	Soe I did for a While; and was just going to say, "You were dream"ing," when a hollow Voice in the Street, beneath our Window, diftinctlie proclaimed,
	"Yet forty Days, and London
	"fhall be deftroyed! I will over"turn, overturn, overturn it! Oh!
	"Woe, Woe, Woe!"
	I sprang out of Bed, fell over my Shoes, got up again, and ran to the Window. There was Nothing in the Streets. The Moon was behind the House. After looking forthe awhile, with Teeth chattering, I was about to drop the Curtain, when, afar off, whether in or over some distant Quarter of the Town, I heard the same Voice, clearlie enow to recognise the Rhythm, though not the Words. I crept to Bed, chilled and awe-stricken; yet, after cowering awhile, and saying our Prayers, we both fell asleep.

The first Sounde this Morning was of Weeping and Wayling. Mother had beene scared by the Night-warning, and wearied Father to Mary, strange to say, had heard noe Noise; nor had the Maids; but Servants always fleep heavily.

	Some of the Pig having beene sett aside for my Uncle, and Mother fancying it for her Breakfast, was much putt out, on going into the Larder, to find it gone. Betty, of course, fayd it was the Cat. Mother made

Answer, she never knew a Cat partiall to cold Pig; and the Door having been latched, was suspicious of a Puss in Boots.

Betty cries—"Plague take the "Cat!"

Mother rejoyns—" If the Plague "does take him, I shall certainly "have him hanged."

"Then we shall be overrun with "Rats," fays Betty.

"I shall buy Ratsbane for them," fays Mother; and soe into the Parlour, where Father, having hearde the whole Dialogue, had been greatlie amused.

At Twilight, she went to look at the the Pantry Fastenings herselfe, but, suddenlie hearing a dolorous Voyce either within or immediately without, cry, "Oh! Woe, Woe!" she naturallie drew back. However, being a Woman of much Spiritt, she instantlie recovered herselfe, and went forward; but no one was in the Pantry. The Occurrence, therefore, made the more Impression; and she came up somewhat scared, and asked if we had heard it.

"My Dear," fays Father, "you "awoke me in the midst of a very "interesting Colloquy between Sir "Thomas More and Erasmus. How-"ever, I think a Dog barked, or rather "howled.

Another Night-larum; but onlie from Father, who wanted me to write for him,—a Task he has much intromitted of late. Mother was hugelie annoyed at it, and sayd,—"My Dear, I am persuaded that if "you would not persist in going to "Bed soe earlie, you woulde not "awake at these untimelie Hours."

"That is very well for you to fay," returned he, "who can few and spin "the whole Evening through; but I, "whose long entire Day is Night, "grow soe tired of it by nine o'Clock, "that

When she was gone, Father continued sitting bolt upright, his Eyes, as she sayd (his beautiful Eyes!), open and wakefull, and his Countenance composed, yet grave, as if his Thoughts were at least as far off as Tangrolipix the Turk. All at once, he says,

- "Deb, are my Sleeves white at "the Elbow?"
 - "No, Father."
- "Or am I shiny about the Shoulders?"
 - "No, Father."
 - "Why, then," cries he, gaily, this

May 12.	Yesterday being the Lord's Day, Mother was hugely scared during Morning Service, by seeing an old Lady put her Kerchief to her Nose, look hither and thither, and, sinally, walk out of Church. One whispered another, "A Plague- "Smell, perchance." "No Doubt "on't;" and soe, one after another lest, as, at length, did Mother, who declared she beganne to feel herself ill. On the Cloth being drawn after Dinner, she made a serious Attack on my Father, upon the Subject

However, we really are preparing for

for Country Quarters, for young Ellwood hath this Morning brought us Note of a ruftick Abode near his Friends, the Penningtons, at Chalfont, in Bucks, the Charges of which fuit my Father's limited Means; and we hope to enter on it by the End of the Week. Ellwood's Head feems full of Guli Springett, the Daughter of Master Pennington's Wife by her first Husband. If Half he says of her be true, I shall like to see the young Lady. We part with one Maid, and take the other. Betty was very forward to be left in Charge; and profest herself willing to abide any Risk for the Sake of the the Family; more by Token she thoughte there was no Risk at alle, having boughte a fovereign Charm of Mother Shipton. Howbeit, on inducing her, much agaynst her Will, to open it, Nought was founde within but a wretched little Print of a Ship, with the Words, scrawled beneath it, "By Virtue of the above Sign." Father called her a filly Baggage, and fayd, he was glad, at any Rate, there was no Profanity in it; but, in Spite of Betty, and Polly, and Mother too, he is refolved to leave the House under the sole Charge of Nurse Jellycott. Indeed, there will probably be more rather than 166s.

than less Work to do at Chalfont; but Mother means to get a little Boy, fuch as will be glad to come for Threepence a-Week, to fetch the Milk, post the Letters, get Flour from the Mill and Barm from the Brewhouse, carry Pies to the Oven, clean Boots and Shoes, bring in Wood, fweep up the Garden, roll the Grass, turn the Spit, draw the Water, lift Boxes and heavy Weights, chase away Beggars and infectious Persons, and any little odd Matter of the Kind.

Mother has drowned the Cats, and poisoned the Rats. The latter have have revenged 'emfelves by dying behind the Wainscot, which makes the lower Part of the House soe unbearable, 'speciallie to Father, that we are impatient to be off. Mother, intending to turn Chalfont into a besieged Garrison, is laying in Stock of Sope, Candles, Cheese, Butter, Salt, Sugar, Raisins, Pease, and Bacon; besides Resin, Sulphur, and Benjamin, agaynst the Infection; and Pill Ruff, and Venice Treacle, in Case it comes.

As to Father, his Thoughts naturallie run more on Food for the Mind; foe he hath layd in goodlie Store of Pens, Paper, and Ink, and fett fett me to pack his Books. At first, he fayd he should onlie require a few, and good Ones. These were all of the biggest; and three or four Folios broke out the Bottom of the Box. So then Mother favd the onlie Way was to cord 'em up in Sacking; which greatlie relaxed the Bounds of his Self-denial, and ended in his having a Load packed that would break a Horse's Back. Alfoe, hath had his Organ taken to Pieces; but as it must goe in two feverall Loads, and we cannot get a bigger Wagon,-everie Cart and Carriage, large or little, being on fuch hard Duty in these Times,—I'm to

to be left behind till the Wagon returns, and till I've finished cataloguing the Books; after which Ned Phillips hath promised to take me down on a Pillion.

Nurse Yellycott, being sent for from Wapping, looked in this Forenoon, for Father's Commands. Such Years have passed since we lost Sight of her, that I remembered not her Face in the least, but had an instant Recollection of her chearfulle, gentle Voyce. Spite of her Steeple Hat, and short scarlet Cloke, which gave her an antiquated Ayr, her cleare hazel Eyes and fmooth-parted Silver Locks gave her an engaging Appearance.

pearance. The World having gone ill with her, she thankfullie takes Charge of the Premises; and though her Eyes filled with Tears, 'twas with looking at Father. He, for his Part, spake most kindlie, and gave her his Hand, which she kissed.

They are all off. Never was House in such a Pickle! The Carpets rolled up, but the Boards beneath 'em unswept, and black with Dirt; as Nurse gladlie undertook everie Office of that Kind, and sayd 'twould help to amuse her when we were away. But she has tidied up the

the little Chamber over the House-door she means to occupy, and sett on the Mantell a Beau-pot of fresh Flowers she brought with her. The whole House smells of aromatick Herbs, we have burnt soe many of late for Fumigation; and, though we fear to open the Window, yet, being on the shady Side, we doe not feel the Heat much.

Yesterday, while in the Thick of packing, and Nobody being with Father but me, a Messenger arrived, with a few Lines, writ privily by a Friend of poor Ellwood, saying he was in Aylesbury Gaol, not for Debt, but for his Opinions, and praying Father

Father to fend him twenty or thirty Shillings for immediate Necessaries. Mother having gone to my Lord Mayor for Passports, and Father having long given up to her his Purse, . . . (for us Girls, we rarelie have a Crown,) he was in a Strait, and at length said,

"This poor young Fellow must "not be denied A Friend in "Need is a Friend indeed Tie "on thy Hood, Child, and step out "with the Volume thou hadst in thy "Hand but now, to the Stall at the "Corner. See Isaac himself; shew "him Tasso's Autograph on the Fly-"leaf, and ask him for thirty or forty "Shillings

	"but bid him on no Pretence to
	"part with it."
	I did so, not much liking the Job — there are often such queer People there; for old Isaac deals not onlie in old Books, but old Silver Spoons. Howbeit, I took the Volume to his Shop, and as I went in, Betty came out! What had been her Businesse, I know not; but she lookt at me and my Book as though she should like to know mine; but,
	with her usual demure Curtsey,
	made Way for me, and walked off.
	I got the Money with much Waiting, but not much other Difficultie,

and

and took it to Father, who fent twenty Shillings to Ellwood, and gave me five for my Payns. Poor Ellwood! he hath good Leisure to muse now on Guli Springett.

Mother was foe worried by the Odour of the Rats, that they alle started off a Day sooner than was first intended, leaving me merelie a little extra Packing. Consequence was, that this Morning, before Dawn, being earlie at my Task, there taps me at the Window an old Harridan that Mother can't abide, who is always a crying, "Anie "Kitchen-stuff have you, Maids?"

Quoth

78	Deborah's Diary.

	"you."
	"Sure, my deary," answers she,
	in a cajoling voyce, "there's the "Dripping and Candles you pro" mised me this Morning, along with "the Pot-liquor."
	"Dear Heart, Mrs. Deb!" fays Nurse, laughing, "there is, indeed,
	"a Lot of Kitchen-stuff hid up near

	"and as it will only make the House

and

and she put into my Hand two Shillings; but then says, "Why, where's

"the Cheese?"

"We've no Cheese for you," sayd'I.

"Well," fays she, "it's a dear

"Bargayn; but..." peering towards me, "is t'other Mayd gone,

"then?"

"Oh, yes! both of 'em," fays I; "and I'm the Mistress," soe burst out a laughing, and shut the Window, while she stumped off, with Something between a Grunt and a Grone. Of course, I gave the Money to Nurse.

We had much Talk overnight of my poor dear Mother. Nurse came of it, having beene before her Time;

but they were both so good, and tenderly affectioned, she never could believe believe there had beene anie reall Wrong on either Side. She always thought my Grandmother must have promoted the Misunderstanding. Men were feldom fond of their Mothersin-law. He was very kind to the whole Family the Winter before Anne was born, when, but for him, they would not have had a Roof over their Heads. Old Mr. Powell died in this House, the very Day before Christmas, which cast a Gloom over alle, infomuch that my Mother would never after keep Christmas Eve; and, as none of the Puritans did, they were alle of a Mind. My other Grandfather dropt off a few Months after: G

after; he was very fond of Mother. At this time Grandmother was going to Law for her Widow's Thirds. which were little worth the striving for, except to One foe extreme poor. Yet, spite of Gratitude and Interest, she must quarrel with Father, and remove herself from his House: which even her own Daughter thought very wrong. Howbeit, Mother would have her first Child baptized after her; and fent her alle the little Helps she could from her owne Purse, from Time to Time, with Father's Privity and Concurrence. He woulde have his next Girl called Mary, after Mother; though the Name

Name she went by with him was "Sweet Moll;"—'tis now always "Poor Moll," or "Your Mother." Her health fayled about that Time, and they fummered at Forest Hilla Place she was always hankering after; but when she came back she told Nurse she never wished to see it agayn, 'twas foe altered. Father's Sight was, meantime, getting worse and worse. She read to him, and wrote for him often. He had become Cromwell's Secretary, and had received the public Thanks of the Commonwealth Great as his Reputation was at Home, 'twas greater Abroad; and Foreigners came x665.

From my Birth to that of the little Boy who died, her Health and Spiritts were good; after that they failed; but she always tried to be chearfull with Father. She read her Bible much, and was good to the Poor. Nurse says 'twas almost miraculous how much Good she did at how little Cost, except of Forethought and Trouble; and all soe secretlie. She began to have an Impression she was for an early Grave, but did not seem to lament

it. One Night, Nurse being beside her, awoke her from what she supposed an uneasie Dream, as she was crying in her Sleep; but as foone as she oped her Eyes, she looked furprised, and said it was a Vision of Peace. She thought the Redeemer of alle Men had been talking with her, Face to Face, as a Man talketh with his Friend, and that she had fallen at his Feet in grateful Joy, and was faying, "Oh! I can't ex-"press.... I can't express—"

Chalfont.

ARRIVED at last; after what a Journey! Ned had sent me Word Overnight to expect, this Forenoon, a smart young Cavalier, on a fine prancing Steed, with rich Accoutrements. Howbeit, Cousin is neither smart nor handsome; and, at the Time specifyde, there was brought up to the Door an old white Horse, blind of one Eye, with an aquiline Nose, and, I should think, eight Feet Feet high. The Bridle was diverse from the Pillion, which was finely embroidered, but tarnisht, with the Stuffing oozing out in feverall Places. Howbeit, 'twas the onlie Equipage to be hired in the Ward, for Love or Money fo Ned fayd And he had a huge Pair of gauntlett Gloves, a Whip, that was the fmartest Thing about him, and a kind of Vizard over his Nose and Mouth, which, he fayd, was to prevent his being too alluring; but I know 'twas to ward off Infection. I had meant to be brave; and Nurse and I had brushed up the green camblet Skirt, but the rent Mother had made in it would would show; however, Nurse thought that, when I was up she could conceal it with a Corking-pin. Thus appointed, Ned led the Way, faying, the onlie Occasion on which a Gentleman needed not to excuse himself to a Lady for going first, was when they were to ride a Pillion. Noe more jesting when once a-Horseback; for, after pacing through a few deferted Streets, we found ourfelves amidst such a Medly of Carts. Coaches, and Wagons, full of People and Goods, all pouring out of Town, that Ned had enough to do to keep cleare of 'em, and of the Horsemen and empty Vehicles coming back for for fresh Loads. Dear Heart! what jostling, curfing, and fwearing! And how awfull the Cause! padlocked and shuttered wherever we passed, and some with red Crosses on the Doors. At the first Turnpike 'twas worst of all-a complete Stoppage; Men squabbling, Women crying, and much good Daylight wasted. Howbeit, Ned desired me to keep my Mouth shut, my Eyes open, and to trust to his good Care; and, by Dint of some shrewd Pilotage, weathered the Strait; after which, our old Horse, whose Paces, to do him Justice, proved very easie, took longer Steps than anie other on the Road.

Road, by which Means we soon got quit of the Throng; onlie, we continuallie gained on fresh Parties,—some dreadfully overloaded, some knocked up alreadie, some baiting at the Roadside, and many of the poorer Sort erecting 'emselves rude Tents and Cabins under the Hedges. Soon I began to rejoyce in the green Fields, and sayd how sweet was the Air; and Ned sayd, "Ah!—a Brick-"kiln," and signed at one with his Whip. But I knew the Wind came t'other Way; and e'en Bricks are better than dead Rats. Half-way to Amersham found Hob Carter's Wagon, with Father's Organ in't, in't, sticking in the Hedge, without Man or Horse; and, by-and-by, came upon Hob himself, with a Party, caroufing. Ned gave it him well, and fent him back at doublequick Time. 'Twas too bad. He had left Town overnight, and promifed to be at Chalfont by Noon. I should have beene fain to keep him in Advance of us; howbeit, we were forct to leave him in the Rear; and, about two Miles beyond Amersham, we turned off the high Road into a country Lane, which foon brought us to a small retired Hamlet, shaded with Trees, and surrounded with pleasant Meadows and Orchards. 1665.

Chatting thus of this and that, we idled over Supper, had some Musick, and went to Bed. And soe much for the only Guest we are like to have for some Months.

Anne told me, at Bed-time, of the Journey down. The Coach, she fayd, was most uncomfortable, Mother having so over-stuffed it. For her Share, she had a Knife-box under her Feet, a Plate-basket at her Back, a Bird-cage bobbing over her Head, and a Lapfull of Crockeryware. Providentially, Betty turned squeamish, and could not ride inside, fo she was put upon the Box, to the great Comfort of all within. Father, at the Outset, was chafed and captious, but foon fettled down, improved the Circumstances of the Times, made Jokes on Mother, recalled old Journies to Buckinghamshire, and, finally, set himself to filent Self-communion, with a penfive faid, let her know well enow what he was about. Arrived at Chalfont, her first Care was to make him comfortable; while Mother, Mary, and Betty were turning the House upfide down; and in this her Care, fhe fo well fucceeded, that, to her Difmay, he bade her take Pen and Ink, and commenced dictating to her as composedly as if they were in Bunhill Fields. This was somewhat inopportune, for every Thing was to feek and to fet in Order; and, indeed, Mother foon came in, all of a Heat, and fayd, "I wonder, my "Dear, you can keep Nan here, at "fuch idling, when she has her Bed " to Howbeit, the next Time he heard Mother chiding—which was after Supper—at Anne , for trying to catch a Bat, which was a Creature she longed to look at narrowly, he fayd, "My Dear, we should be very "cautious how we cut off another "Person's Pleasures. 'Tis an easy

	"Thing to fay to them, 'You are "wrong or foolish,' and soe check

Let us live, and let live; leave me to hunt my Buttersly, and Anne to catch her Bat."

Our Life here is most pleasant.

Father and I pass almost the whole of our Time in the open Air—he dictating, and I writing; while Mother and Mary find 'emselves I know not whether more of Toyl or I Pastime,

Pastime, within Doors,—washing, brewing, baking, pickling, and preferving; to say Nought of the Dairy, which supplies us with endless Variety of Country Messes, such as Father's Soul loveth. 'Tis well we have this Resource, or our Bill of Fare would be fomewhat meagre; for the Butcher kills nothing but Mutton, except at Christmass. Then, we make our own Bread, for we now keep strict Quarantine, the Plague having now fo much spread, that there have e'en been one or two Cases in Chalfont. The only One to feek for Employment has been poor Anne, whose great Resources at Home have ever been churchgoing and vifiting poor Folk. She can do neither here, for we keep close, even on the Sabbath: and she can neither read to Father. take long, lonely Rambles, nor help Mother in her Housewifery. Howbeit, a Resource hath at length turned up; for the lonely Cot (which is the only Dwelling within Sight) has become the Refuge of a poor, pious Widow, whose only Daughter, a Weaver of Gold and Silver Lace, has been thrown out of Employ by the present Stagnation of all Business. Anne picked up an Acquaintance with with 'em shortly after our coming; and, being by Nature a Hoarder, in an innocent Way, fo as always to have a few Shillings by her for charitable Uses, when Mary and I have none, she hath improved her Commerce with Joan Elliott to that Degree, as to get her to teach her her pretty Business, at the Price of the Contents of her little Purse. So these two sit harmoniously at their Loom, within Earshot of Father and me, while he dictates to me his wondrous Poem. deal, and abstracted his Mind all the Evening; for why, else, should he have so forgotten himself as to call me sweet Moll? ... Mary lookt up, thinking he meant her; but he never calls her Moll or Molly; and, I believe, was quite unaware he had done so to me: but it showed the Course his Mind was taking.

This Morning, I was straying down a Blackthorn Lane, when a blue-eyed, fresh-coloured young Lady, in a sad-coloured Skirt, and large-stapped Beaver, without either Feather or Buckle, swept by me on a small white Palfrey. She held a Bunch of Tiger Lilies in her Hand, the the gayety of which contrasted strangelie enow with her sober Apparell; and I wondered why a peculiar Classe of Folks should deem they please God by wearing the dullest of Colours, when He hath arrayed the Flowers of the Field in the liveliest of Hues. Somehow, I conceited her to be Mistress Gulielma Springett—and so, indeed, she proved; for, on reaching Home after a lengthened Ramble, I faw the Tiger Lilies lying on the Table, and found she had spent a full Hour with Father, who much relished her Talk. Sure, she might have brought a blind Man Flowers that had had fome Fragrance, however dull of hue.

To-day, as we were fitting under the Hedge, we heard a rough Voice shouting, "Hoy! hoy! what are you "about there?" To which another Man's Voice, just over against us, deprecatingly replied, "No Harm, "I promise you, Master.....We "have clean Bills of Health; and "my Wife and I, Foot-fore and "hungry, do but Purpose to set up "our little Cabin against the Bank, "till the Sabbath is overpast." "But you must set it up Some-"where else," cries the other, who was the Chalfont Constable; "for Confequence is, I have infinitely more Leifure, and can ramble hither and thither, (always shunning Waysarers), and bring Home my Lap stull of Flowers and Weeds, with rusticall Names, such as Ragged Robin, Sneezewort, Cream - and - Codlins, Jack-in-the-Hedge, or Sauce-alone. Many of these I knew not before; but I describe them to Father, and he tells me what they are. He hath finished his Poem, and given it Ellwood to read, in the most careless Fashion imaginable, saying, "You

Nor do I believe he has ever fince given himself an uneasy Thought of what that Judgment may be, nor what the World at large may think of it. His Pleasure is not in Praise but Production; the last makes him now and then a little feverish; the other, or its want, never. Just at last, 'twas hard Work to us both; he was like a Wheel running downhill, that must get to the End before it stopped. Mother scolded him, and made him promife he would leave leave off for a Week or so; at least, she says he did, and he says he did not, and asks her whether, if the Grass had promised not to grow she would believe it.

Poor Ellwood's Love-bonds prove rather more irksome to him than those of his Gaol; he hath renewed his Intercourse with our Friends at the Grange, only to find a dangerous Rival stept into his Place, in the Perfon of one William Penn-in fact, I fuspect Mistress Guli is engaged to him already. Ellwood hath been clofetted with my Father this Morning, pouring out his Woes-methinks he must have been to seek for a Confidant!

Confidant! When he came forth, the poor young Man's Eyes were red. I cannot but pity him, tho' he is fuch a Formalift.

I wish Anne were a little more demonstrative: Father would then be as affured of her Affection as of mine, and treat her with equal Tenderness. But, no, she cannot be; fhe will fitt and look piteously on his blind Face, but, alas! he cannot fee that; and when he pours forth the full Tide of Melody on his Organ, and hymns mellifluous Praise, the Tears rush to her Eyes, and she is oft obliged to quit the Chamber; but, alas! he knows not that that. So he goes on, deeming her, I fear me, stupid as well as filent, indifferent as well as infirm.

I am not avised of her ever having let him feel her Sympathy, save when he was inditing to me his third Book, while she sate her Sewing. 'Twas at these lines:—

- "Thus with the Year,
- "Seafons return; but not to me re-
 - " turns
- "Day, or the sweet Approach of Even "or Morn.
- "Or Sight of vernal Bloom or Sum-"mer's Rose.

" Or

His Brow was a little contracted, but his Face was quite composed; while she, on t'other Hand, with her Work dropped from her Lap, and her Eyes streaming, sate gazing on him, the Image of Woe. At length, timidly stole to his Side, and, after k

Eyelids. He caught her to him, quite taken by Surprise, and, for a Moment, both wept bitterly. This was foon put a Stop to, by Mother's coming in, with her Head full of stale Fish; howbeit Father treated Anne with uncommon Tenderness all that Evening, calling her his fweet Nan; while she, shrinking back again into her Shell, was shyer than ever. But his Spiritts were foothed rather than dashed by this little Outbreak; and at Bedtime, he faid, even cheerfully, "Now, good-"night, Girls:... may it, indeed, "be as good to you as to me.

I wish I knew the Distinction between Temperament and Genius: how far Father's even Frame is attributable to one or t'other. If to the former, why, we might hope to attain it as well as he;—yet, no; this is equallie the Gift of God's Grace. Our Humours we may controwl, but our Temperament is born with us; and if one should fay, "Why are you a Veffel of "glorious things, while I am a Vessel "of Things weak and vile?"—nay, but oh! Man or Woman, who art thou his Threshing, to discourse of Heaven and Earth, and bring forth from his Mind's Storehouse Things new and I wonder if the World will ever give heed to his Teaching. Suppose a Spark of Fire should drop fome Night on the Manuscript, while Ellwood is dozing over it; why, there's an end on't. I suppose Father could never do it over again. I wonder how many fine Things have been lost in suchlike Ways; or whether God ever permitts a truly fine Thing to be utterly loft. We may drop a Diamond into the Sea; but there it is, at the Bottom of the Great Deep. Justinian's Pandects turned Howbeit, were I to round the Cape, I should hardly look for stranger and more glorious Scenes than Father hath in his Poem made familiar to me. He hath done more for me than Columbus for Queen Isabel—hath revealed to me a far better New World. Now, I scarce ever look on the setting Sun,

And, in the less brilliant Hour, I, by Faith or Fancy, discern Ithuriel and Zephon in the Shade; and by their Side a third, of regal Port, but faded Splendour wan. A little later still, can sometimes hear the Voice of God, or, as I suppose, we might say, the Word of God, walking in the Garden. Pneuma! His Breath! His Spirit! How hushed and still! brought back the MS. at last, and delivered his Approbation thereon with the Air of a competent Authority, which Father took in the utmost good part, and chatted with him on the Subject for some Time. Howbeit, he is not much flattered, I fancy, by the Quaker's pragmatick Sanction, qualifyde, too, as it was, to show his own Discernment; and when I confider that the major part of Criticks may be as little fitted to take the Measure of their Subject as Ellwood is of Father, I cannot but fee that the gleaning of Father's Grapes is better than the Vintage of the Critick's Abiezer.

Betty's Death, calling up Memories of old Times, hath made me fomewhat cynical, I think. I cannot but call to Mind her many ill Turns. 'Twas shortly after the Rupture of Anne's Match with John Herring. Poor Nan had overreckoned on her own Strength of Mind, when she promised Father to speak of him no more; and, after the first Fervour of Self-denial, became Mind before I returned; and Mary having loft his Opinion by previous Squabbles with Mother and the Maids, I came back only to find the House turned upside down. 'Twas under these misfortunate Circumstances that poor Father commenced his Sampson Agonistes; and, though his Object was, primarily, to divert his Mind, it too often ran upon Things around him, and made his Poem the Shadow and Mirrour of himself. When he got to Dalilah, I could not forbear faying, "How "hard you are upon Women, Father!" "Hard?" repeated he; "I think "I am anything but that. Do you "call

	"in Comus?"
	"No, indeed," I returned. "The "Lady, like Una, makes Sunshine
	"in a shady Place; and, in fact,
	"how should it be otherwise? For "Truth and Purity, like Diamonds,
	"fhine in the Dark."
	He fmiled, and, passing his Hand across his Brow to re-collect himself, went on in a freer, less biting Spirit, to the Encounter with Harapha of Gath, in which he evidently revelled, even to making me laugh, when the big, cowardly Giant excused himself from coming within the blind Man's Reach, by faying of him, that he had had need of much washing to be willingly touched. He went on flowingly to

"But take good Heed my Hand
"furvey not thee;

"My Heels are fetter'd, but my Fist
"is free,"

and then broke into a merry Laugh himself; adding, a Line or two after,

"His Giantship is gone, somewhat "crest-fallen;

".... there, Girl, that will do for

"To-day."

Meantime, his greater Poem had come immediate Payment of five Pounds, with a conditional Expectance of fifteen Pounds more on the three following Editions, should the Public ever call for 'em. And truly, when one confiders how much Meat and Drink One may buy for Twenty Pounds, and how capricious is the Taste of the critikal World, 'tis no mean Venture of a Bookseller on a Manuscript of which he knows the actual value as little as a Salvage of the Gold-dust he parts with for a Handful of old Nails. At all events, the Sale of the Work gave Father

	no Reason to suppose he had made
	no reason to suppose he had made an an ill Bargain; but, indeed, he gave himself very little Concern about it; and was quite fatisfied when, now and then, Mr. Marvell and Mr. Skinner, or fome other old Crony, having waded through it, looked in on him to talk it over. Money, indeed, a little more of it, would have been often acceptable. Mother now began to pinch us pretty short, and lament the unfaleable Quality of Father's Productions; also to call us a Set of lazy Drones, and wonder what would come of us some future Day; infomuch that Father, turning the Matter fedately in his Mind, did feriously conclude 'twould

	While, to learn some Method of Self-fupport. And this was accelerated by an unhappy Collision 'twixt my Mother and me, which, in a hasty Moment, sent me, with swelling Heart, to take Counsel of Mrs.
	Lefroy, my fometime Playfellow Rosamond Woodcock, then on the Point of embarking for Ireland; who volunteered to take me with her, and be at my Charges; fo I took leave of Father with a bursting Heart, not troubling him with an Inkling of my Ill-usage, which has been a Comfort to me ever fince, though he went to the Grave believing I had only fought my own Well-doing.

We never met again. Had I foreseen it, I could not have left him. The next Stroke was to get away Mary and Anne, and take back Betty Fisher. Then the nuncupative Will was hatched up; for I never will believe it authentick—no, never; and Sir Leoline Jenkins, that upright and able Judge, set it aside, albeit Betty Fisher would swear through thick and thin.

Sure, Things must have come to a pretty Pass, when Father was brought to take his Meals in the Kitchen! a Thing he had never been 1680.

been accustomed to in his Life, save at Chalfont, by Reason of the Parlour being fo small. And the Words, both as to Sense and Choice, which Betty put into his Mouth, betrayed the Counterfeit, by favouring overmuch of the Scullion. "God have "Mercy, Betty! I fee thou wilt per-"form according to thy Promife, in "providing me fuch Dishes as I "think fit whilft I live; and when "I die, thou knowest I have left "thee all!" Phanfy Father talking like that! Were I not so provoked, I could laugh. And he to fell his Children's Birthright for a Mess of Pottage, who, instead of loving loving favoury Meat, like blind Isaac, was, in fact, the most temperate of Men! who cared not what he ate, so 'twas fweet and clean; who might have faid with godly Mr. Ball of Whitmore, that he had two Dishes of Meat to his Sabbathdinner,—a Dish of hot Milk, and a Dish of cold Milk; and that was enough and enough. Whose Drink was from the Well;—often have I drawn it for him at Chalfont !-- and who called Bread-and-butter a lordly Dish;—often have I cut him thick Slices, and brought him Cresses from the Spring! Well placed he his own Principle and Practice in the kind Children; for we can never tell what what Reasons had been given him to make him think us fo. That must stand over. How many human Misapprehensions must do the same! Enough that one Eye fees all, that one Spirit knows all even all our Mifdoings; or elfe, how could we bear to tell Him even the least of them? But it requires great Faith in the greatly wronged, to obtain that Calm of Mind, all Passion fpent, which some have arrived at. When we can stand firm on that Pinnacle, Satan falls prone. He fets us on that dizzy Height, as he did our Master; saying, in his taunting Fashion,—
